Wallace Reid To Appear in New Role
As Ring Champion

William Burroughs, son of John Burroughs, a prosperous Britisher who aspires to the society of noblemen, prefers fishing to studying theology and while indulging in that pastime meets Lady Elizabeth Galton, woos her and is thrashed by her cousin, Lord Brockington, who also loves her.

Denounced by Burroughs, William leaves that night and soon afterward is working his way aboard ship to America. Seven years later William returns and finds Lady Elizabeth, her fortunes diminished, working as social secretary for his people. Burroughs is still clamoring for a social rise and when he learns William has been a prizefighter in America, is greatly distressed. The reporters get wind of the story, and the next issues of the newspapers announce the homecoming of Gunboat Williams, middleweight champion.

To Burroughs' surprise, several of the nobility call to pay their respects to William, each asking him to be his guest. Realizing he had made a mistake, Burroughs changes his attitude and gives a banquet in honor of his famous son. William resumes his romantic acquaintance with Lady Elizabeth who turns cold, however, upon learning he has been a ring fighter.

The Cast
William Burroughs..... Wallace Reid
Lady Elizabeth..... Lois Wilson
John Burroughs..... Lionel Belmore
George Burroughs..... Henry Miller, Jr.
Mrs. Burroughs..... Helen Dunbar
Rev. David Burroughs..... Leslie Casey
Lord Brockington..... S. J. Sandford
Butler..... W. J. Ferguson
Mooney..... Guy Oliver
Lord Brockington calls upon Lady Elizabeth and tries to persuade her to leave the Burroughs' home, offering to marry her. She refuses him. On the evening of the banquet he calls again and when he becomes angry at her second refusal to leave the Burroughs' home, William enters and hands him his hat.

In answer to his inquiry, William gives him a card which reads, "William Burroughs, attorney-at-law." Brockington remembers him and they go into the garden by mutual consent to fight it out. Williams thrashes Brockington soundly, the latter, to his great discomfiture learning after the engagement that he has fought a champ. All learn that William is an American citizen and they sing "Yankee Doodle."

The fact that William has retired from the fight game and is now an attorney, makes Lady Elizabeth regard him in a different light. He tells her he is leaving for America in the morning, but instead of telling him goodbye, she announces she is also going to America on her honeymoon. He gives her his card and asks her to look him up. She writes her American address on the card and hands it back to him. In great delight, William reads, "Mrs. William Burroughs, 150 Elm Street, New Haven, Conn." He clasps her in his arms.

"LITTLE EVA ASCENDS"

As a successor to his first starring pictures, "Garments of Truth" and "The Hunch," Gareth Hughes now has "Little Eva Ascends," a picturization of the joyously humorous story by Thomas Beer that appeared in the Saturday Evening Post. It deals with a boy of sixteen whose mother, a barnstorming actress, forces him to play little Eva in "Uncle Tom's Cabin" when he has long since outgrown the role. The tale of his revolt makes a little classic of barnstorming life and it is said, affords Gareth Hughes the best role of his starring career.

It is a George D. Baker production for S-L (Arthur Sawyer and Herbert Lubin) Pictures, released by Metro. The cast includes Eleanor Fields, May Collins, Unice Vin Moore, Benjamin Haggerty, Edward Martindale, Harry Lorraine, Mark Fenton, John Prince, Fred Warren and W. H. Brown. The photography is by Rudolph Bergquist and the art direction by E. J. Shulter.

"A HOMESPUN VAMP"

"A Homespun Vamp," in which May McAvoy will be seen here next week offers the star an entirely new kind of role—that of a little country Cinderella, who drudges for a pair of stingy old Scotch uncles.

Naturally the tale abounds in homey country touches, from the cooking of corned beef and cabbage by the star, through the ludicrous match-making attempts of her guardians, a pair of masculine old maids who are, respectively, the village cobbler and carpenter.

A loutish country lover forms an excellent foil to a city sweetheart who appears later in the story. This gentleman's path is by no means smooth, however, and before the clever little romance is ended there are plenty of decidedly dramatic complications.

"THE GUTTERSNIPE"

A girlish head bent over a copy of "Sloppy Stories" magazine, hidden on the shop counter behind a stack of pasteboard boxes. The story of "Lord Lytton's Love" was gripping her in its sentimental appeal.

Later the same shop girl waded into a crowd of ruffians who were beating up a young man in dress clothes on a corner of New York's Irish "ghetto." She was as badly mugged as he. Although scratched and torn, the young man looked like her mental picture of Lord Lytton.

A few days later, "Lytton" was in jail as a counterfeit. The heroine sought a solution for her sweetheart's difficulties in the latest instalment of the "Sloppy Stories" yarn—and the way she found it and used it provides a gripping interest in the very natural comedy-drama of a "dapper."

London Claims Best Ventilated Building

LONDON, Aug. 12 — (Associated Press Mail)—What is said to be the most up-to-date and complete ventilating system in the world is that installed in the Council Chamber of the London County Council's £4,000,000 palace at Westminster, recently opened by the king.

Its unique feature is that each member is able to control his own immediate atmosphere. He has a "control" button below his desk, so that if he is feeling cold he can make the air that is automatically fed to him a little warmer—or vice versa—without up setting his neighbor.

Apart from individual regulation, 40 tons of air are automatically admitted and extracted from the council chamber every hour.

A maze of pipes beneath the floor of the chamber connects the air inlets and outlets with a room full of wonderful machinery in the sub-basement, including large but noiseless fans, water sprays, thermometers, dynamos, polished gauges and a network of brass control pipes.

Through the agency of this machinery the climatic conditions of any country in the world can be introduced into the council chamber and the large committee-room.

A remarkable feature of the ventilating apparatus is that the effect of a sudden change in the outside temperature is immediately and automatically conveyed to the sensitive instruments in the sub-basement, so that they promptly adjust their efforts toward maintaining an even temperature inside.

A fall of rain on the roof, or a spell of sunshine, are felt by the instruments and they act accordingly.

More remarkable still is the fact that a single member coming into the council chamber when overheated automatically effects the entrance of an additional proportion of cool air to balance the minute change.

Grown Folk Make Use Of Library More In The Summer Months

More use of the Maui County Free Library in Wailuku was made by adults in July than in any previous month. At the same time there was an expected falling off in its use by children. Reports from the outside branches have not all been received so it is impossible to make a comparison in the use of the main library and its branches. In the month there was opened a branch at Puunene and in the short time it has been open 51 books were taken from it.

Falling off in the use of the library by children was to be expected with the closing of the schools. Each afternoon during the school year there is a rush into the library of children as soon as the Wailuku Public School is dismissed. They use the reading room and take books home with them. During the summer they are reading less and are not passing the building twice each day for five days in the week as when attending school.

Away from the main library there has been little service for the children during the summer for they are served through branches in the school but the summer is being utilized in preparing and boxing of shipments of books to such school libraries when the new year opens and ten such shipments were made in July. During August the same work is going on and all shipments will probably go out within a few days after the schools open next month and there are teachers at the schools to receive them.

In July there were catalogued and placed on the shelves 132 new books.

Her Strong Point

A little girl of five was entertaining the callers while her mother was getting ready. One of the ladies remarked to the other with a significant look, "Not very pre-t-t-y," spelling the last word.

"No," said the child quickly, "but awful s-m-a-r-t."—Boston Transcript.
